President's Message

Thinking of our members who have had or will have medical procedures .... Greg, Tony, Dave, wishing you the best and hoping to see you soon online or in person.

Have you started your photobook? I prepaid for mine with a black Friday coupon. Now the real work must begin. This is a crazy busy time for me but editing photos is a meditative thing that keeps me centered. Wishing all of your wonderful holidays full of photography opportunities.

Editor Message

Christmas holidays are close and New Year Eve is approaching extremely fast. What an amazing future is in front of us? New photo, new opportunities, probably new gear. Our club in December and January has different schedule: in December there is no competition, in January there is only the competition meeting but, what exciting activity we have so soon: a) Photobook competition as the year competition, b) Award banquet to close the year. We will celebrate all together another beautiful year at the club that, also in these difficult moments, is full of energy and creativity. I take advantage of this moment to wish everyone my best wishes of Happy Christmas and a beautiful New Year.

Last but not least. For the January Galleon, due to the no competition in December, I like the idea to enter some photos from everyone: the perfect choice is a memory of your holidays so has not to be for competition (classical family photo next to the Christmas tree is perfect).

At 3:50 pm, we will meet at the Wilding Museum to check out the exhibits, including “Sharing the Light: Ansel Adams & Alan Ross.” ($5 admission) Sunset is at 4:51pm with twilight ending at 5:17pm, so we can walk and photograph the town’s holiday lights and displays till dark. #### MERCED WILDLIFE REFUGE

7430 W Sandy Mush Rd, Merced

<https://www.fws.gov/refuge/merced/>

Leave Santa Maria by 7 a.m. to get to Merced Wildlife Refuge. Takes about 3.5 hours to get there. Sandhill cranes return to MWR around noon. Spend 2-3 hours there as cranes leave again around 2-3 p.m. Get lunch. Get room at Best Western in Los Banos. Go back two hours before sunset to see cranes return again. Spend night at Best Western or dry camping at Walmart Supercenter or Best Western parking lot.

INFO FROM ONLINE: The Merced National Wildlife Refuge encompasses 10,258 acres of wetlands, native grasslands, vernal pools, and riparian areas. It was established in 1951 under the Lea Act to attract wintering waterfowl from adjacent farmland where their foraging activities were causing crop damage. In the last few decades, changes in local agricultural practices and Refuge management activities have reduced these wildlife/crop issues. The Refuge plays host to the largest wintering populations of lesser Sandhill cranes and Ross' geese along the Pacific Flyway. Each autumn more than 20,000 cranes and 60,000 arctic-nesting geese terminate their annual migrations from Alaska and Canada to make the Refuge home for six months. Here they mingle with thousands of other visiting waterfowl, waterbirds, and shorebirds – making the Refuge a true winter phenomenon. The Refuge also provides important breeding habitat for Swainson's hawks, tri-colored blackbirds, marsh wrens, mallards, gadwall, cinnamon teal, and burrowing owls. Tri-colored blackbirds, a colonial-nesting songbird, breed in colonies of more than 25,000 pairs in robust herbaceous vegetation. Coyotes, ground squirrels, desert cottontail rabbits, beaver, and long-tailed weasels can also be seen year-round.

Tuesday

MERCED WILDLIFE REFUGE,

7430 W Sandy Mush Rd, Merced

INFO FROM ONLINE: The Cosumnes River Preserve is 46,000 acres that protects oak trees, savanna, riparian forest, and habitat. Located on the Pacific Flyway bird migration route, the preserve is designated an Important Bird Area by the American Bird Conservancy and Audubon Society. The preserve provides critical habitat for Sandhill Cranes and other migratory birds. It is a birdwatcher's paradise and is visited annually by tens of thousands. On a given day you can see more birds than people.

STATEN ISLAND, N. Staten Island Road

Go to nearby Staten Island to see the sandhill cranes leaving.

INFO FROM ONLINE: Located in the heart of the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Delta, Staten is 9,200 acres located between the North and South Forks of the Mokelumne River. Staten Island has been a wintering destination for Sandhill Cranes moving along the Pacific Flyway for more than 40 years; 15 percent of all Greater Sandhill Cranes in the Central Valley winter on Staten, and more than half of Greater and Lesser Sandhill Cranes in the North Delta winter on Staten. Spend the night in Sacramento. Can couch surf at Jeanne and Ken's house, Donner Way, Sacramento, or sleep in camper in the street.

Wednesday

SACRAMENTO WILDLIFE REFUGE

<https://www.fws.gov/refuge/Sacramento/about2.html>

A place for sandhill cranes, tundra swans, bald eagles, and raptors. Spend the night in Willows. (Harvest Host? Hotel?)

INFO FROM ONLINE: The refuge supports over 250 species of birds. Most notable are the huge wintering concentrations (November - January) of 500,000 to 750,000 ducks and 200,000 geese. Raptor numbers swell as the waterfowl numbers increase, including bald eagles and peregrine falcons. Waterfowl viewing is good between October and March. In addition, shorebird numbers peak in the spring and fall, while some waterfowl and numerous migratory songbird species nest here during the summer. Many birds and mammals provide year-round viewing.
